■ FAQ'S

FAQ'S

Q: Why are dogs used for drug detection?

A: A dog has about 200 million sensitive cells in its nose, compared to about five million or so in a human being, and therefore, a dog's ability to smell is around 40 times more sensitive than that of a human. Dogs also have the ability to distinguish individual odors when other strong smells are also present.

Q: What drugs are the dogs trained to find?

A: Our drug dogs are trained to find drugs like marijuana, cocaine, heroin, crack and methamphetamines.

Q: Is the use of dogs for drug detection legal?

A: One of law enforcement's most effective tools in the war against drugs has been the drug detection dog. Drug detection dogs have proven highly effective and reliable in detecting illegal narcotics. The Supreme Court and most lower courts have granted particular deference to the ability to smell of police drug detection dogs. This article addresses the legal aspects of canine sniffs for controlled substances, including their use in determining probable cause for searches of vehicles, individuals, and premises.

Q: What are “contraband” items?

A: Contraband items include illegal drugs and any other item that is forbidden by a law enforcement agency.

Q: What happens when illegal drugs are found?

A: Because we are a privately contracted service, we can work under your instruction and guidelines. Any contraband found on the property is held in strictest confidence. Any course of action is at your discretion.

Q:Will our neighbors know we are using a dog for drug detection?

A: No, we come in an unmarked truck and are extremely discreet in our sweep of the property as well as our findings. We act with your privacy in mind.

Q: What do the dogs do when they find an illegal drug or weapon?

A: They have been trained to simply locate the item and place their nose on the container. In this passive alert stage the dog waits.

Q: What are the common signs of drug abuse in the work place?

A: Some signs include: decreased production, rising injury rates, theft, damaged products, fraudulent workers compensation claims, absenteeism, tardiness, personnel turnover.
